

Community Works

At Davis & Hodgdon Advisory Group, we are proud supporters of our Vermont community in every way. Beyond our volunteer and board involvement, our firm is socially responsible and environmentally conscious. That's why, in 2010 we installed 96 solar modules generating 23,000 kilowatts of electricity on our building. We know that by doing our part now, we are preserving our beautiful state for generations to come.

Do business with a team that shares your interests – in your community and in your business.

Davis & Hodgdon Advisory Group has developed a Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) policy that is specifically tailored to small business. The components of the policy are in place to manage our interaction with staff, clients, suppliers and stakeholders with the ultimate goal of sustainability for all. The three main components of the policy include 1) Community Works, 2) Environmental Standards and 3) Staff Wellness.

Through Community Works, we strive to contribute to a vibrant and sustainable local economy. We believe that we can have deeper impact by focusing our giving (charitable donations, pro-bono and other skills-based services, sponsorships) on specific “cause areas”. We then develop partnerships with nonprofits that fit into those cause areas and provide financial and in-kind support to those partners.

The firm's 3 main cause areas are Financial Literacy, Entrepreneurship, and Vermont's Green Economy.

Since the inception of the CSR policy in 2013, we have donated over $183, 575 in charitable giving and sponsorships and over $736,000 in pro-bono and skills-based services to nonprofit clients and organizations.
